WELCOME

Play is essential for children's healthy development and learning. Children use play to try out new ideas, actively construct knowledge, learn new skills and grow socially and emotionally. Through creative play, a child lays the foundation for later academic learning.

Sadly, children are playing far less than previous generations. Open play time is being cut from schools, replaced with screen time and usurped by organized sports. This Crisis in Play has resulted in an increased rate of mental illness, a reduction in creative thinking and poor social skills in our children.

This catalog is not only a collection of the most outstanding developmental toys, books and games available; it's also a guide parents can use to promote rich and meaningful play. As parents and caregivers, we must make time for play. Consider scheduling a family game night, setting aside time for open-ended play, limiting time spent on screens and resist the temptation to over-schedule your child.

If you love the mission of helping kids learn through play, ask your Educational Consultant about joining Discovery Toys.

Together we can change the world one child at a time.

AUTISM & SPECIAL NEEDS

Nearly every toy in our catalog has an Autism Symbol that corresponds with the specific learning the toy supports. Use the following key to choose the most appropriate toy for your child.

- a Toys to develop independent play with some limited instruction.
- b Toys that promote sustained engagement.
- c Toys that build skills for cooperative play.
- d Toys that create opportunities for children to talk about their play experience.
- e Toys with obvious completion criteria.
- f Toys that encourage pretend play.
